

The Torch

Our weekly roundup, shining a light on life in Bridlington School

For most of year 11 Friday was their final exam and this their last full week in school before their summer break. They just have a food and nutrition exam for some students and their leavers' assembly next Wednesday. Although most year 13s have now finished, the scientists still have an exam heavy week next week with biology, chemistry, physics and maths papers still to sit.

Key Stage 3 students haven't missed out on written exams either with NGRT (New Group Reading Tests) taking place.

Our transition team have once again been out in primary schools all week working with the students who will be our year 7 in September before their transition days on 4th and 5th July.
